“ My earliest memories of Antoinette are her visiting my family when I was a kid and her first words after driving for hours were, “what do you want to play?” Although she was our cool older cousin from Brooklyn she never made us “kids” feel like we were annoying and totally engaged with us. She could make up games with just a piece of paper and pen, and would always be the first to instigate shenanigans. As we grew older she shared the best family stories and recipes as cooking was her love language.. How I will miss your face, laugh, long talks and linguine with clams, but I know you’re dancing now sweet cousin and hope I make you proud. Xoxo Rachel
